THE SILVER MANDOLINE.—SPANISH SERENADA

—“If that thou lovest me,
Steal forth this balmy night.”—

‘Tis night! behold yon crescent car
Shine brightly on its azure way—
One hour of moonlight’s sweeter far
Than ages of the tell-tale day.
Haste then to thy leafy shrine,
Whilst the night is all our own;
Hearts that beat like yours and mine
Ne’er were meant to throb alone.

O waste not moments such as these,
When thoughts are fond and souls are true;
Give, give thy whisper to the breeze,
And drink the sighs I wait to you.

Then quickly come; sweet rays serene
Are kissing every fruit and flower—
O, with thy silver Mandoline,
Come quickly to the orange bower.
Haste then to thy leafy shrine,
Whilst the night is all our own;
Hearts that beat like yours and mine
Ne’er were meant to throb alone.

THE WIFE’S FIRST LOVE.

—“I pray you play on this pipe.”—Hamlet.

Adelheid, hearing her husband’s approaching footsteps, hastened to extinguish the little taper that was burning on the table, and adjusting her collar and veil before the mirror, unlocked the door of the boudoir, and went forth to meet him with an unobtrusive air. “Comment! ma belle Hermite, tou-jours au boudoir! I was looking for you at the Theatre this very fine day. Truly, my incomparable, I shall begin to grow jealous of that crimson fauteuil, those arms encircle you so often.” As De Morier playfully spoke thus, he drew his Adelheid affectionately towards him, but she complained of a slight indisposition, averted her face, and withdrawing herself from his clasp, pointed his attention to some passing object in the street, and began to talk of their projected tour to Fontainebleau.

Adelheid Eichrodt was a young and lovely Berliuese, who, at the age of seventeen, had been introduced to the Count de Morier, a Frenchman of family and distinction. He became deeply enamored of her beauty and simplicity. The offer of his hand was graciously accepted, and he brought her in triumph to his hotel in the Faubourg St Germain; where, notwithstanding the late dissensions, that a difference of national tastes and prejudices is apt to occasion, they lived in the very plenitude and perfection of conjugal concord.

They had been married about a year and a half, when De Morier fancied he observed an alteration in his wife’s habits and manners. It appeared to him that his Adelheid was becoming less frank and candid towards him; she was reserved, distrustful. There was an air of mystery in her proceedings. In fact, it was evident she had some secret with which she was sedulously desirous he should remain unacquainted.

He was constantly in the habit of finding scraps of paper scattered about the floor, for the appearance of which she accounted in various unsatisfactory ways. He more than once surprised her in whispered conference with old Karl, a German domestic, who, having lived in her father’s service since the period of Adelheid’s infancy, had on the event of her marriage, requested to be allowed to accompany his young mistress to Paris. On his approach they would suddenly separate, and as it seemed to him, in something of confusion. He had also on one occasion been exceedingly perplexed and mortified, by overhearing two ladies in society, after extolling the undeniable beauty, and grace, and affability of Madame de Morier, make an exception to her prejudice, (the “particulars” did not reach his ear) which was immediately followed by an exclamation of “Mon Dieu! ce ne pus possible—une bete, un monstre effrayant degoutant.” He was not quite sure that the epithets were applied to his wife, but he more than suspected they were. It was not long after, on entering her apartment unexpectedly, he saw her rush towards the open window and dash something to the ground. “Bah, bah! Adelheid, why surely I have entered Houbjant’s fabrique, in mistake for my own hotel! Essence de Millicheurs! A-tar de Rose! What are all these scents that are so scattering about the room? You will suffocate me with your many sweets. I have often told you my aversion to strong perfumes.”

The suspicious husband having observed Madame, in one of her late mystic meetings with the old steward, confide a large purse of gold to his possession, hastily quitted the room, full of vague apprehensions and surmises, and fully resolved to take an early opportunity of satisfying himself in what manner his wife was in the habit of employing the intervals of his absence from home, which, owing to a pending lawsuit, had become of late very frequent and protracted. Yet he loved and respected her too much to distress her with open and direct inquiries on the subject of her visible confusion. Accordingly on the day following this little squabble, he took occasion during breakfast, to signify that he was engaged on business the whole of the day, and should probably be detained until the evening of the morrow. Not long, however, after the usual hour of dinner, he made his appearance: the old steward opened the door.

“What, Karl! as I left you in the morning I find you in the evening—toujours la pipe! Always smoking! Is Madame at home?” “Non, Monsieur, non.” “No! I think you are mistaken, Karl; I am early positive that I saw her close the jalousie of her boudoir this moment in a white dressing-gown. Is she gone?” “Yes, sir—alone, sir! to be sure she is gone—at least, that is—I will tell her you are come, and—” “I thank you, I can inform her myself.” “Why, no; that is—just if you please, sir, to allow me—may be she might be engaged, or—” “Engaged! how, what, with whom?” “Oh, with nobody, sir.” “Let me pass, old man; what does this mean?” “Nothing, sir, but if you would only now—de sir, only just wait a moment, that I may tell my lady, sir; she will be so frightened—you will be so angry.” “Angry, yes I am angry at your unaccountable detention of me. In truth, I do begin to have some evil surmises and suspicions. Hear me, Karl—tell me all you know of your lady—why does she speak to you in whispers—give you gold?” “The old steward trembled. “Oh, pray don’t ask me, sir; I can’t tell you. My lady is a sweet and beautiful angel; but it is certainly lamentable that she should be so fond of that great long—”

The Count trembled in turn. “What! Who? What is my wife fond of—”

“Only a little, sir; sometimes by way of recreation; she does not often, and they do say people’s inclinations are not in their power.”

The Count’s brain instantly took fire. Imagination mastered reason; yet he adopted a reasonable course, in resolutely shaking the old man from his hold, and striding swiftly and silently along the range of rooms that led to his Adelheid’s apartment. In a state of considerable excitement, he pushed open the boudoir door with vehemence; but stood transfixed on the threshold at the spectacle which presented itself to his view.

His young and lovely wife was reclining listlessly in the large arm-chair, her foot reposing on a low foot-stool, her elbow resting on a small table at her side, while her delicate hand sustained an enormous chibouque, from which she was puffing clouds of fragrant incense!

His astonishment soon relaxed into immoderate laughter. “So, so, my fair Mussulman, I’ve caught you at last—now the secret’s out, and the mystery, like most other mysteries, ends in smoke. That Jesuitical old Karl, too, to conspire against me. Truth, Adelheid, I don’t know that I ever saw you look more graceful, charming—more femininely lovely. Nay, don’t pout and blush and cry, and throw down that magnificent chibouque so disdainfully; I’ll buy it of you, my mignon; will you sell it to me, eh?” and throwing his arms around her, he hid her tears of mortification in his bosom. “And now my sweet wife,” resumed De Morier, as Adelheid released herself from his lengthened embrace; “we will put away this pretty toy, if you please, until we go back to Berlin. Custom here is everything. Now, the Parisian ladies are not yet accustomed—that is, it is not yet the fashion here—in short, my love, the Parisian ladies don’t smoke!”

DAVIS’S CHEMICAL VEGETABLE Liquid Oil Soap.

THIS article, by a proper application, removes grease spots and all other substances, from Carpets, Woolens, Cotton and Linen Garments of every description, without injuring the least the color or texture of the goods. It restores them to their original lustre, and may be used with perfect safety, even on the finest fabrics. It is particularly recommended for cleaning Coat Collars, so apt to become soiled by the hair. It is also extremely useful in all cases of Sprains, Bruises, Corns and Rheumatism. It is likewise a remedy for Scalds or Burns of any description, relieving the pain and effecting a cure more readily than any article hitherto used for the purpose. Ample directions for its application, in all cases, will be found on each bottle.

There is so much convenience and economy in its use, that no person, having once tried it and ascertained its virtues, would ever afterwards be without it.

The above article for sale by WM. C. STIMPSON & CO., No. 3, South side Faneuil Hall. epw—law6m—026

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1835.

NOTICE.—A meeting of the County and Ward Committees will be held at the Old Common Council Room, at THREE EVENING at seven o'clock, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Senators and Representatives for the County of Suffolk and City of Boston.

PETER DUNBAR, Chairman.
SETH J. THOMAS, Secretary. Oct. 29

For the Boston Morning Post.

Warren Bridge.—I am happy to see a proper spirit prevailing among the Democratic citizens, in relation to the shameful affair of Warren Bridge. All the people, the laboring and middle classes, without distinction of political party, should feel that they have a strong interest in this question, and that the rich monopolists and bridge stock-holders, with their supporters and adherents, are not only trifling with them, but are imposing upon them, and keeping them under tribute, from year to year, making them hevers of wood and drawers of water for a privileged class. The various excuses for delay, in not allowing the people to use what is their own without paying tribute for such use, are mere pretence and humbug. The community, and especially the citizens of the North End and Charlestown and the neighboring towns, have been humbugged for years, and it is time to put a stop to the imposition.

The Democratic meeting in Ward 4 have nobly resolved, that they will "use all just and honorable means in their power, to procure written pledges from all candidates for the legislature, that they will support measures in favor of a free bridge in Charlestown," &c.

The meeting in Ward 5 resolved, that the "baronial, monopolizing, exclusive right set up by the proprietors of Charles River bridge, to extort tribute from the whole northern travel into the city, is unwarranted," &c.—and "that in the selection of candidates for the State legislature, regard should be had to the bridge question," &c.

Ward 9 have declared, that "trespassing on public privileges have been too successfully defended, on the ground that they have become vested rights, and the judiciary of the nation called upon to enforce the exorbitant demands of overgrown wealthy corporations, against citizens, for exercising a right as clearly their own, as the air they breathe,—that of making and using their own highways,"—meaning Warren Bridge.

These, and other signs of the times, show the spirit that is rising, and that the giant public is awake, to brush off, at one sweep, all the annoying insects, which are sucking his blood and disturbing his peace. There will, at the next Session, be not only a House, but a Senate, willing to allow to the people their rights, and to provide for the interest and convenience of the public at large;—not devoted to a class or a clan, or seeking to aggrandize one portion of the citizens at the expense of the other.

In addition to these ward meetings, it is the desire of many citizens, that a grand assemblage of all the friends of free avenues without condition or delay, should be held at Faneuil Hall, on some convenient evening, where the subject may be illustrated and enforced, and the old cradle of liberty be made to ring again with sentiments, principles, feelings, and resolutions, such as consecrated and hallowed it in former times. Let a union of feeling prevail, and perhaps a compromise may be made among a sufficient number of all parties, to carry a perfect free bridge ticket, and elect an independent delegation, devoted to the public good;—not slaves to selfish and sectional principles, nor the mere tools of a lordly few.

SPIRIT OF SEVENTY-FIVE.

Harper & Brothers' New Edition of Paulding's Works. Vols. 5 and 6, containing his Letters from the South, in 2 vols.: New York, 1835.

What a delightful library companion is Paulding! He makes no pretension or promise to instruct you, for his motto is—

"Men should be taught as if you taught them, and things unknown proposed, as things forgot."

And yet who can glance over his pages with the most careless indifference, and not soon discern that he is taught something that he did not know before—something worthy of treasuring up in the memory and the heart? You commence a sentence, and begin to smile, before you have finished it, a gush of feeling comes from the heart, and that smile is suddenly resolved into a rainbow, glittering through the vapors of the eye! But let Paulding speak for himself in half a sentence:

"She carried us into the best room, which is always kept dark to keep out the flies, and was literally festooned with short gowns and petticoats hanging all round. These I suppose constituted the little girl's fortune, and certainly a very respectable dower, in chintz and linsey-woolsey. The mother here displayed, with eyes that would have sparkled if they could, a little basket made of bristles by her daughter, which was very ingenious and very pretty; and if it had not been either, we would have praised it—for foul befall the churl who would check the honest feelings of an honest mother!"

How true to nature, the sentiment! And such is Paulding, always.

[Aside! We have not received the 3d and 4th volumes of Paulding's works; nor yet, Norman Leslie.]

The Atlas finds fault because the Democrats and Anti-Masons have united in some of the Counties in their nominations for Senators. We are very glad that they have, and hope they will also unite in selecting their candidates for Representatives, wherever it can consistently be done. The Masonic question is pretty well settled—it can scarcely be said that any distinct party organization upon the subject exists. Democrats in principle, no matter what parties they may have acted with heretofore, should now lay aside all minor jealousies, and unite for the good of the cause.

The Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury have decided that the Americans are legally authorized to trade between the United States, or any part of the United Kingdom, and Singapore, as also between the United States and any part of the British possessions in the East Indies.

The Salt River papers announce the arrival of many Whigs from Rhode Island, New Jersey, Ohio, and Georgia—letters have also been received from men of the same party in Massachusetts, enquiring about the advantages of settling in that region.

Mr Coney and his "wonderful dogs" are performing at one theatre in Baltimore, and Mad. Celeste at another—Celeste goes ahead of the pointers—they "bark up the wrong tree," when they undertake to rival the "French Spy."

Ohio.—The returns from Ohio, so far as received, give the following results: For the Senate—Democratic seven—Whigs three! For the House—Democratic thirty-one—Whig twelve!

The Daily Advertiser thinks that it isn't worth while to run grumpy Harrison for the Presidency.

The General Assembly of Rhode Island met at Newport on the 27th inst. Mr Allen of North Kingstown was chosen Speaker without opposition, as were Mr Dexter Randall, of Providence, and Mr George Turner, elected Clerks. A correspondent of the Providence Journal says—

"The Senate not having formed a quorum, the House could not proceed in the transaction of business, which would require the concurring of the Senate, and at 11 o'clock they adjourned till the afternoon. The report is that Lieut. Governor Engs, has resigned his office, and that Governor Francis has received his resignation. I presume it is so, although he has not yet communicated it to the Senate. Senator Almy is over 70 years of age and is said to be quite unwell, and whether he is able to attend this session is extremely uncertain. If he does not come, the Senate cannot form a quorum, as you very well know there existed four vacancies for want of an election in May, and of course no Legislative business can be transacted. A messenger has been despatched for him to Tiverton, who may return by 3 o'clock. I shall communicate the result on his return."

At the Democratic Meeting held at the old Common Council Room on Tuesday evening last, Mr RAYMOND was elected Chairman, and Messrs Davis and Josselyn Secretaries; the subject of nomination of candidates for Senators and Representatives was referred to the County and Ward Committees, to report to an adjourned meeting of the citizens on Tuesday evening next, 7 o'clock, at that place.

The Warren Bridge.—The House of Representatives yesterday afternoon, insisted upon their former amendments to the Warren Bridge Bill, by a greatly increased majority. The inquiry now is, how long will the Senate resist the popular branch of the Legislature, upon a question on which that popular branch has respected and represented the will of the people?

Mr Joseph A. Levy, news collector for the Charleston Mercury, fell between two boats in that harbor on the 19th inst., while attempting to board a vessel, and was drowned.

The British Government has appointed Henry Stephen Fox, Esq., Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States.

There are two hundred and forty eight bones in the human body—who wonders that there are so many bones of contention among them.

Paganini is n't dead, after all the fuss—he still lives and fiddles, and fiddles to live.

Late from France.—By the packet ship France, Capt. Funck, from Havre, we have Paris dates to 23d September.

Spain.—It appears certain that the Cortez are soon to be convoked to dispel all incertitude on the true interpretation to the Premier, M. Mendizabal's, programme of government.

The Junta of Arragon have addressed a manifesto to the Queen, justifying of the movement of Saragossa against the ministry of Torero.

There is nothing later than before received. Cotton Market at Havre, Sept. 21—Sales of American Cotton, that day, about 900 bales, chiefly Louisiana and Georgia.—N. Y. Star.

Distressing Shipwreck.—One hundred and thirty-four lives lost.—We have been favored with a file of Sydney (New South Wales) papers to the 16th of May, containing the particulars of the loss of the British convict ship George the Third, and a hundred and thirty-four lives. She was cast away on a reef in the mouth of the Derwent, Van Dieman's Land, not laid down on any chart. The following is a return of the persons on board:—

Total embarked,	308
Died at sea—1 woman, 3 children, 12 prisoners,	16
Total wrecked,	292
Saved from the wreck.
All the Guard,	32
6 Women—11 children,	17
Crew,	30
Prisoners,	81
Perished,	132

Abolition Convention.—There is a lack of definite information in regard to the flag and proceedings of this Convention, after their adjournment to Peterborough. The Vernon (Oneida County) Courier of Friday says: "Many of them [the Abolitionists] arrived in this place in the evening, and put up at the different hotels in the village. Some excitement was manifested here in consequence of certain injudicious remarks made in the presence of our citizens, reflecting upon the character of highly respected individuals of the county; but we believe they were allowed to pass the night without any serious interruption. In the morning they proceeded on their way to Peterborough where they re-organized their convention."

Another Boundary War.—Trouble appears to be arising on our northern frontier; our Canadian neighbors have intimated their intention to take possession of the Indian stream Territory, on the northern confines of New-Hampshire, which tract has been under the jurisdiction of that State for a long period.—The inhabitants are in favor of the British authorities, who, it is said are sustaining them in their attempts to change the government.—Buffalo Trans.

Steamboat Explosion and loss of Life.—We learn from the New Orleans Union of the 9th inst. that the steamboat Boonslick, Capt. Lake, when on her passage thence for St. Louis, burst her boiler, nearly opposite to Plaquemine, by which accident the Captain and Engineer lost their lives, and a number of other persons on board were scalded in a serious manner. No further particulars of this fatal explosion, had reached the city at that date.

Pensacola, Oct. 10.—Naval.—The U. S. sloop of war Vandalia, sailed from this port yesterday, on a cruise to windward. We have heard that the whole squadron will rendezvous at some West India port, perhaps St. Barts, about the last of November, to receive the orders of Com. Dallas. We may expect the squadron here, towards the close of December.

A Flood at the West.—The county of Gates, in this state, and the adjacent country, were in the forefront of last week visited by a tremendous storm, which swelled the Genesee to an unprecedented extent, by which means many bridges were carried away, and an immense amount of damage done along the shores of the river. Particulars not received.—N. Y. Sun.

The project suggested at a public meeting in Cincinnati several weeks since, of constructing a railroad from Cincinnati, via Paris, Ky. to Charleston, S. C. is now advocated with zeal and ability, not only by the Lexington Intelligencer, but by most of the wealthy and influential men in the interior of this State.—Kentucky Ad.

Fire at Huntsville.—The Mobile Advertiser of Oct. 13th, says "We learn from a gentleman arrived in this city last evening, in the steamboat Jack Downing, that the town of Huntsville has been visited with a desolating fire. The post office was about the only building saved on one square."

Timothy Merrill, Esq. has been appointed Secretary of the State of Vermont. He had 146 votes—Charles Linsley 65.

POLICE COURT.

Desecration of a Harem.—On Tuesday night, the attention of the Watch was called to an old wooden building, in Market Place, near Boylston streets. It had been for months the rendezvous of the outcasts of society, male and female. State-Prison-Birds and House-of-Correctionists ever found a welcome, secure and appropriate home there, and a suitable depot for the storage and division of their spoils. It was in fact the Thieves Exchange. The ostensible head of the establishment was Timothy Loker, who received his degree of S. P. C. in the Municipal Court, three years ago. He maintained a certain degree of dignity and state, and kept a seraglio, of unique specimens of female beauty; there was Sarah Cummings and Catharine Nelson; Margaret Roach and Elizabeth Over; Betsey Roach and Mary Brown, who all acknowledged him as their liege lord and protector, for the time being. The last lady, Mrs. Brown, filling the responsible office of doctress in the interior apartments, and being rather too much dilapidated to toddle to jail, was left as a keeper in the premises, while Loker and the other five ladies were taken into custody. There was but one bed in the house, and the only cooking utensil was a tin kettle, which was half filled with rum. When the officers entered, the floor of the lower room was completely flooded with rum. Veteran Reid declared, that he "knew them all, and every leg of 'em would drink like ducks." Another witness had seen rum carried into the house in mugs, pitchers and pails, out of which he had seen the women drink; and, when they had taken so much that they could not stand, they would lie round on the floor, in true Turkish style, while Loker carried round the pail for them to drink from as they lay sprawling. One night, through drunken negligence, they set the house on fire, and came very near being consumed in the flames. The ages of the women ranged from seventeen to seventy. The youngest was Betsey Roach, who wore a brain new white satin bonnet, of the latest fashion, and trimmed with green ribbon and flowers. Of stockings, she wore also a pair, but not mated; likewise a shoe she had on her right foot, and on her left a pump—the former out at the toe, the latter down to heel. She shed tears freely—not on her own account, she declared, but her mother's. What filial affection in "shreds and patches." The mother, too, was touched by her daughter's lachrymosity, and tried hard to shed a tear; but the briary secretions had long since been dried and scorched up by constant inhalings of alcohol. Catharine Nelson was the oldest, and professed to be shockingly scandalized by the charge preferred against her. Her eyelids were red and inflamed, and looked like nothing so much as the crimsoned pointing tips of a wax-work beauty. When asked if her "eyes acquired their sanguine hue, by weeping at the wickedness that surrounded her," she replied, that she "could never have believed there was so much sin in the world, if she had not witnessed it." United in crime, the groupe were not divided in punishment, but all six sent to the house of correction for six months.

Singular Assault.—Two colored men, named William Carr and William Johnson were acquaintances, and on sociable terms with each other, apparently. One afternoon, while Carr was walking through Ann street, Johnson overtook him, and commenced a conversation with him, and among other out-of-the-way-things, said,—"Carr, do you know I'm a bad nigger—I am a horrid nigger, you may depend on't; and I shall be hung yet, you see if I ain't." Carr replied to this strange declaration, "Don't talk so like a fool in the street—people will hear ye." Then both jogged on together a few steps, when suddenly Johnson fell in the rear, and struck Carr a very violent blow in the back of the head, with a handkerchief filled with large pebbles. A short time previous to the meeting between the two, Johnson was observed to be engaged in earnest conversation with another colored man, who had long cherished a grudge against Carr, for having exposed some of his misdoings on board of the packet of which Carr is steward; it was therefore supposed that Johnson was employed by the disaffected negro to assail Carr. He was fined $2,00 and costs, and committed for want of funds.

The Exhibitions of the several Public Female Schools took place yesterday, and the City Medals were awarded to the following young ladies for superior scholarship:—

Boylston School—Louisa Morton, Cynthia K. Reynolds, Augusta Snow.
Hawes School—Susan B. Cook, Elizabeth A. Cotton.—Transcript.

House of Representatives.—In the afternoon, on Tuesday, amendments to the chapter relating to Counselors and Attorneys were adopted, which abolish these distinctions and require that every person of good moral character shall be admitted at once to full practice in all the Courts, upon his filing a certificate of his intention, with the Clerks of the Court. This amendment was offered by Mr Rantoul of Gloucester, who made a few remarks in explanation of it, and it was then supported at much more length by Mr Robinson of Marblehead, and Mr Everett of Boston. Mr Winthrop of Boston, being on a committee to which this subject was referred, and having refused in that committee to accede to the amendments, stated to the House his objections.—Daily.

War in Texas.—The New Orleans papers contain advices from Matamoros, supported by a variety of official accounts, leaving little doubt that the quarrel between the Mexican government and the revolutionists of Texas has at length assumed the aspect of actual hostilities.—Transcript.

A country paper announces that notices of births, marriages, and deaths, will not be received unless authenticated by the signatures of the parties. Only think of cradled babes and confined tenants authenticating their "births" and "deaths" by their "signatures."—Salem Gaz.

Melancholy Occurrence.—A boat containing 14 men, while crossing Buffalo Creek, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, drifted under the bows of the schooner Florida, filled, and immediately upset, and the whole were drowned.—Buffalo paper.

Benevolence of Birds.—A lady residing in the neighborhood of London, hung out a cage near her balcony, in which was a young bird, and it was fed for many weeks by sparrows.—Jesse's Gleanings in Natural History.

A Miss Wood lately recovered of a Mr Hurd at the London Common Pleas, for a breach of promise to marry, £4500 sterling. Who ever Hurd such a price for Wood!

The finest Broadclothes exhibited at the late fair in New York, were from Waterbury, Conn. and Oxford and Lowell, Massachusetts.

Warren Bridge.—The Senate have non-concurred with the House in the amendments to the Warren Bridge bill, and sent it back.

The late "Tom and Jerry" scrape of the Irish Lords in our watch house, is, it is said, to be dramatised by a lady of this city. What next?—N. Y. Star.

Highland Wit.—Who is there that has travelled the West Highlands, and does not know Rory More—the rattling, roaring, ready-witted, warm-hearted, big-fisted Highlandman, that keeps what her nainseil calls the "Travelling Emporium"? Surely none. And who that has ever experienced the comforts to be found under his roof-tree, but feels an "ardent longing after" a repetition of the enjoyment? Surely few: and those who have had the pleasure of cracking a bottle with him, and seen him in his glee, for "muckle glee and fan has he," will easily believe the following little anecdote. A Cockney, one of the most troublesome and supercilious of the gens, who, during a residence of three days, had been the pest and torment of waiters, chambermaid, boots, and, in fact, the whole tail of the inn, having at last made up his mind to depart, he marched up to Rory with his hat set obliquely on his highly frizzled poll, a cigar in his mouth, and his hands doubled up on his haunch-bones. "I say, landlord, I want a os." "That's what I can't give," says Rory, "all the horses are out, and I could not get one for you were it to save your life." "Oh! I'm me, landlord, that answer vont do for me; I'm going off, and what the devil am I to ride on, pray?" "Just," replies Rory, "cocking his eye, 'ride upon your own impudence; it will carry you further than any horse in Argyleshire.'"—Laird of Logan.

Swimming.—Eight of the best swimmers of the Austrian garrison of Bregenz engaged, for a wager, to swim across Lake Constance, from that town in the Tyrol to Lindau, a distance of six miles. They started at ten o'clock, and at three minutes before three o'clock a private soldier, named Tutaja, reached the bridge at Lindau. In 32 minutes afterwards he was followed by Lieut. Cepharowitsch. The six others only went about half the distance, and then were taken into the boats that attended them. The wind was blowing from the west, and the temperature of the water was 17 degrees of Reaumur, or 70½ of Fahrenheit. This is, perhaps, the greatest distance ever traversed by swimming in fresh water. The two men who completed their task were perfectly blue when they landed; their pulse was scarcely perceptible, and several hours elapsed before their bodies resumed their natural heat.—Paris Adv.

Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce.
Rochester, Oct. 22d, 1835.—We have at this time one of the severest freshets in the Genesee river, that we have ever had. The flood-wood, timber, saw logs, boards, shingles, rafts, hay, oats, that are now, and have been passing us for the last forty-eight hours, are immense, and indicate the damage done up the river to be very great. Gen Wardsworth writes that the water on the flats at Genesee is three feet higher than he has ever known it for the forty-five years he has been a resident of the country, and that it is still rising.

On Monday night, at the Haymarket Theatre, (London,) a Mr Otway attempted Hamlet. He failed—having fainted, through fright, in the first act on the stage. Some years since he made a debut at Drury Lane, could not go through, from an accident, and his Hamlet was finished by Mr Hamblin.

Vandenhoff is "starring" at Liverpool. He was attached to this theatre for twenty years, is good in Roman characters, an imitator of John Kemble, and has a face with as little expression as the countenance of a sheep. As Coriolanus, and that line (only), he is admirable.

Charles Kean—now at the very height of his profession—is at Brighton, starring. The match between him and Ellen Tree, is off.

The leading tragedian at Liverpool Theatre now is Mr Stuart, late of the Bath corps—a man of great ability, and truly conversant with the spirit of Shakspeare.

Sir Colquhoun Grant has made up the quarrel with his daughter, Mrs Sheridan, and her handsome husband. They are all gone to the country—a happy family party.

NEW ENGLAND CROWN GLASS.—The New England Crown Glass Company have recently erected a new furnace and are manufacturing an excellent article. Their Crown Glass is thick, pure, and of a fine color. Its thickness gives it an advantage over all thin glass, which is liable to crack from contraction in cold weather. Its surface not being polished after being blown, retains its enamel, brilliancy and hardness, and is not liable to the objection which applies to Plate Glass, of being easily and permanently bedimmed by dust.
The New England Crown Glass being purer in color than any other Glass, is preferable for Stores, as it does not tinge the rays of light as they pass through it, and therefore white goods particularly appear to advantage. It is peculiarly useful for Factories, as some minutes of light may be gained morning and evening, in consequence of the absence of color in this glass. The price of second quality is reduced from the rates heretofore asked.
Those who wish to contract for this Glass are requested to specify NEW ENGLAND CROWN GLASS. As much imposition has been practised by dealers in Glass, by deceptive marks on boxes and other articles, any purchaser who may apprehend this article has been imposed upon, is requested to personally apply to the subscriber for any information he may wish to enable him to detect the deception. Orders sent to the undersigned, at Boston or East Cambridge, or to any at the Company's Selling Agents, will be promptly attended to. Persons wishing the appointment of Selling Agent, can apply to the subscriber by letter or otherwise.

IMPORTANT FOR BOOTS AND SHOES.
CHAMBER AND HARNES.—Lincoln's Leather Preserver, recovers, softens, preserves, and when used in proper quantities, rendering the leather water proof. It prevents the drying and cracking—gives a softness and elasticity to the leather—renders it more durable, as well as more agreeable and safe to those who would avoid wet feet—boots, to which this article has been applied, are so much more durable than others, that its use is an important point of economy.
Being now made in large quantities, its price is very reasonable, and ample discounts are made to vendors—paste blacking appears to advantage over leather thus prepared.
This article is sold wholesale and retail at No 13 Elm street, by GEORGE F. R. WADLEIGH, Agent for the Manufacturer.
Also, for sale as above, Lincoln's Paste Blacking, a prime article, excelled by no other invention for making leather soft and giving it a beautiful black lustre. epistw 021

FARM FOR SALE.
Also—CATTLE, FARMING UTENSILS, HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, &c.
On WEDNESDAY, the 18th of November, at 2 o'clock, P. M. the FARM, in Malden, belonging to the late WILLARD PEREE, Esq., containing upwards of 100 acres of Land, lying in a body, and consisting of tillage, pasture, wood land, and peat meadow, in convenient proximity for all the uses of a farm. The buildings consist of a well finished brick dwelling house, a barn 60 by 35 feet, built by the late owner in the most thorough and substantial manner, with a cellar under the same, and cattle shed and yard adjoining 50 feet by 20 feet, a corn shed, and a large wash shed. There are several hundred fruit trees, chiefly apple and pear, (upwards of one hundred of the latter) which were carefully selected from the best nurseries, and comprise all the best fruit kinds in the country, and a large quantity of small fruit. The farm is well stored with fish, and a stream running through it, with a fall sufficient to furnish a considerable mill power—and upon which a saw mill was formerly erected. The farm is but little more than four miles distant from the Wimmisimund Ferry, and may be rendered a profitable estate to any person desirous of supplying the Boston market with fruit and milk.
The sale will take place on the premises. Conditions liberal. Also, immediately after the sale of the farm, all the stock, consisting of a yoke of oxen, several cows and pigs, and two ox wagons, 1 ox cart, 3 horse wagons, and a variety of Farming Utensils, and all the Hay and Potatoes remaining upon the farm. Also, sundry articles of Household Furniture.
